

English for Employment

English language is becoming increasingly popular in every sphere of the world at present. While the competition for employment is unprecedentedly escalating in the global context, demand for an English speaking workforce is also increasing. There is an unprecedented demand for employees who are confident and fluent in English language and in this context, it is obvious that those who are proficient in English language secure more opportunities on the current job market.

English for Higher Education

Moreover, for students who seek opportunities in higher education in local and foreign universities, English language has become a mandatory requirement and particularly when looking for higher education abroad, they need to sit for English qualifying tests such as GRE, TOFEL, IELTS, etc., which require advanced skills in English language. Therefore, in this context, it is quite obvious that learning English language has an unprecedented significance in higher education.

Learning English Online

The course uses modern state-of-art e-learning technologies in delivering English language lessons as well as in assessing the learner performances. Learners can learn in their own phase by engaging in self learning or working in groups in collaborative learning environments by participating in voice and text forums and chat sessions. Learners can do both online and offline activities any time; 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Learners are directed to useful online resources through many links as necessary for further reference. Moreover, they can monitor their progress and obtain e-facilitation whenever the need arises.

Improvement of Basic Language Literacy

The course aims developing English language competencies. Prominence has been given in developing both productive (speaking & writing) and receptive (Listening & Reading) skills, while focusing on grammar and style of language have also been equally emphasized.

Development of Functional literacy

The skills required in modern business and academic environments have been given prominence. English for Specific Purpose (ESP); Business communication and academic English, which are the high priority areas for youth, have been specifically included.
